Websites for Psychological Research

The International Society for Research on Aggression (ISRA)

http://www.israsociety.com

In 1972, ISRA was founded by a group of researchers who were interested in studying aggression.

The society has since grown to become one of the largest and most influential organizations in the field of aggression research.

The society's mission is to promote the understanding of aggression and its consequences, and to foster collaboration among researchers and practitioners in the field.

ISRA publishes several journals, including the journal Aggressive Behavior, which is the official journal of the society.

The society also sponsors conferences and workshops, and provides resources and support for researchers and practitioners in the field.

ISRA is a vital resource for anyone interested in the study of aggression, and its contributions have had a significant impact on the field.